Program Topic & Content Determination
With continuous development of new clinical evidence and revisions of existing guidelines, today’s health care professionals need guidance to critically evaluate and apply appropriate standard of care. The 20th Annual Spring Cardiology Symposium is designed to provide interventions to bridge knowledge gaps and develop competence in controversial issues, new guidelines, management strategies and new medications.

Objectives
- Review the following according to ACC/AHA recommended guidelines: 1) appropriate screening and referral recommendations from primary care setting to specialist; 2) medications-indications/ contra-indications; 3) cardiac risks of non-cardiac surgery; 4) primary care management of atrial fibrillation; 5) management of lipids; 6) recognition/treatment of resistant hypertension; and 7) review of the basic evaluation for cardiovascular disease.
- Identify and provide an update on the prevention of progression in heart failure.
- Determine primary care management of atrial fibrillation.
- Discuss new imaging for the management of heart failure.
- Evaluate patient criteria relevant to surgical management of cardiac disease.
- Discuss causation and consequences of iatrogenic QT prolongation.
- Recognize the MACRA (Medicare Access and CHIP Reauthorization Act) indications for various stress tests
