

March 17, 2010

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE WITH PHOTO

CONTACT: DEBORAH ROBERTS PUGH
(662) 377-3712

TUPELO, Miss.—Volunteers from the Weston Reed Cardiovascular Conference recently presented automated external defibrillators from the third annual Weston Reed Cardiovascular Conference. Weston's grandparents, Ray and Janice Reed (far left), and George Hand (far right) of North Mississippi Medical Center's Heart Institute distributed AEDs to (from left) Daphnea Solomon of Children's House Montessori School, Dana Hale and Joy Hand of Itawamba Community College in Fulton; Cecil Williams of ICC's Belden Center; and Allen McDaniel of Tupelo Automobile Museum. Students from ICC's nursing program were also on hand.

The NMMC Heart Institute donated the AEDs to the conference. The conference committee continues to accept applications for AEDs from any nonprofit organization in Lee County. To download the application, visit westonreedcc.org. AEDs have been placed in parks, schools, law enforcement vehicles and public gathering spots since the first conference in 2007. For more information, call (662) 841-5819 or e-mail wrccaed@gmail.com.